Fellowship and Ariston Award To Pat Rehagen

Congratulations twice-over are due Pat Rehagen, class of '59, who has the honor of being the winner of both the Student Government Association's Ariston Award, and a fellowship to Villanova University in the English Department.

During her four years at CST, Pat has earned the distinction of Ariston Award by keeping a scholastic average of 2.0, by her outstanding work on campus in various organizations, especially the Student Government Association. The award is given in recognition of outstanding leadership qualities which include a willingness to work in all phases of campus activity, the ability to work well with others, enthusiasm, and those special qualities which distinguish the "leader."

Pat was also Yearbook Editor and Junior Class Council Representative. She has held a part-time job during each of her four years in college. She is graduating with a Secondary Certificate, enabling her to teach English. Pat did her practice teaching at Paseo High School.

The Fellowship to Villanova University will enable Pat to work on her Master's Degree in English. She plans to begin work on this degree next fall, in Villanova, Pennsylvania.

Students Receive Awards At Honors Assembly

Class Day was held Monday, May 18, in the Music and Arts Auditorium. Ceremonies included the installation of the new officers of the Student Government Association, receiving the keys by the new Student Council, farewell of the Student Body to the graduating Class and the presentation of awards to members of the student body. Traditional ceremonies of the Graduating Class were also held.

The new officers installed in S. G. A. were: Virginia Bartholome, president; Margaret Reinhart, vice president; Gay Puester, secretary; and Kathy Fahlstrom, treasurer. Outgoing officers who presented the symbols of office to these girls included: Pat Rehagen, president; Carmelita Bergup, vice president; Sue Mulligan, secretary; and Gay Puester, treasurer. New members of the Student Council receiving pins were: Marilyn Marshall, Judie Stephenson, Sue Campbell, Anita Alvarez, and Margaret Hagel, and the incoming officers.

Joyce Huff, president of next year's Senior Class, gave the traditional farewell speech to the seniors.

Various awards were presented to members of the graduating class by Sister H. Eileen, Dean, and Virginia Bartholome, assisted by Connie Kassick. Awards for those students enrolled in Who's Who went to: Pat Rehagen, Carmelita Bergup, Bernadine Abbott, Margie Courter, Carolyn Bousman, Joanne Ainsworth, Carmella Shortino, Emeley Perez, Charlene Mathews, Sister Helen Louise and Sister Catherine Lucile, twin sisters.

The ARISTON AWARD, presented to the outstanding member of the graduating class by the Student Council, was given to Pat Rehagen.

SUMMER SESSION
REGISTRATION ..... June 20
CLASSES: June 22 — July 30
Daily Monday through Friday Except the first week when classes will meet Saturday, June 27.

The award given to the Sodality Prefect was presented to Emeley Perez. The Mission Club Award was given to Rita Hall.

Nancy Schmitz received a gold key from the Missouri Collegiate Newspaper Association, for having the best newspaper verse in this year's judging of collegiate newspapers. Kay Leitner received an award for having accumulated the most points in the Catholic Community Library literary contest. Virginia Bartholome received an award for her competency in editing the Teresian.

Frat Initiates Three Teresians

Three college drama students Connie Ragusa, junior, Sandie Janousek, junior and Marcella Bergup, sophomore, were initiated into Beta chapter of Alpha Gamma Omega honorary Catholic drama fraternity at Mount Scholastica College on Sunday, May 17. Eight other new members were accepted from St. Benedict's and Mount St. Scholastica.

Besides the initiation of new members the election of officers was held. Sue Bargman, Mount St. Scholastica junior, was elected chapter president, Paul Carroll, St. Benedict junior, secretary, and Marcella Bergup, St. Teresa sophomore, treasurer. Pat Turpin, CST junior, served as secretary for the past year.

Beta chapter has been recognized by the National office as one of the most active along with St. Louis and Chicago.

A familiar face has been missing from the Math Department for the past five weeks. Sister M. Pachomia has been ill at St. Joseph's Hospital, but is now far toward recovery. She hopes to be back at the college in time for graduation. Sister wishes to thank all the students for their kind messages and to assure them she remembers their intentions in her prayers.

These hoods are worn about the shoulders rather than on the head, as is the normal use for a hood. This custom dates back to the fifteenth century, when the hood became a badge indicative of rank or degree and was worn over the shoulder rather than as a regular article of apparel.

This year's ceremony will be held at 8:00 in the evening of May 29. The student body and faculty will process from Donnelly Hall to the Music and Arts Building. The Baccalaureate address or "farewell discourse" will be given by Reverend Joseph Freeman, S.J., M.A., associate professor of Philosophy at Rockhurst College. The hoods will then be conferred by Reverend James J. Schlafly, M. A., formerly a history teacher at the college. Father Nadeau, O. P., is acting as master of ceremonies.

DePaul U. Speaker For CST 17th Commencement

Dr. Urban Fleege, chairman of the Department of Education at DePaul University, will be the speaker at the forty-sixth annual commencement on Saturday, May 30, at two o'clock in the afternoon. Of the seventy graduates, thirty-six will receive the Bachelor of Arts degree, twenty-two, the Bachelor of Science in Nursing, and twelve will receive diplomas in Nursing.

The Most Reverend John P. Cody, bishop of the Kansas City-St. Joseph Diocese, will award degrees and diplomas. The Reverend Joseph A. Nadeau, O. P., chaplain at the college will confer the diplomas upon the graduates. The Rt. Rev. Arthur M. Tighe and the Rt. Rev. Thomas B. McDonald will attend the Bishop.

Dr. Fleege is known to his audience. Earlier this year he spoke to the student assembly on the subject of education in the Soviet Union, a result of his visit there with a group of educators last year.

Five graduates finished with honors. Jewell Wilson Herrick graduates magna cum laude, a grade average of 2.7 for four years. Four students are graduating cum laude, having maintained a grade average of 2.5 for the four years. They are Carmelita Bergup, Sister M. Immaculata Goth, O.S.F., Margaret Ann Chandler, and Sister Catherine Louis Rutte, C.S.J.

May Day Crowning at Grotto

EMELEY PEREZ, prefect of the Sodality, crowns the Blessed Virgin in the annual May Day celebration, consisting of a procession to the Grotto and a Holy Hour in the auditorium, May 12, at two o'clock in the afternoon. Father Nadeau, chaplain, gave the sermon and Benediction, following the procession and the crowning. This year for the first time the Queen and her court wore academic dress. Those in the court were Margie Courter, this year's regional Mariology chairman; Judy Gleeson, next year's regional chairman (pictured above); Arden Sickman, next year's Sodality prefect; Barbara Rush, vice-prefect; Patsy Phelps, secretary-treasurer.

Baccalaureate Preview

The dictionary defines a baccalaureate degree as "a university degree of bachelor" or the "first degree" given by universities and colleges, and a baccalaureate sermons as a "farewell discourse given to a graduation class." The word Baccalaureate, comes from the Latin baccalaureus, meaning laurel berry.

In ancient Roman times victors of contests were awarded laurel wreaths for their accomplishments. For this reason the ceremony at which the "victors" (or graduates) receive their "laurels" (or degrees) is called a "baccalaureate ceremony."

At St. Teresa's both the students and the faculty participate in this baccalaureate ceremony. The students wear academic dress. The faculty wear gowns and hoods, the style and color of which vary according to the degree (bachelors, masters, or doctors), and the college or university from which the degree was merited. Each field also has a designated color. The color for the arts is white, for science is gold, and for music is pink. For example, Sister Rita Agnes wears a light, ice blue hood (signifying her doctor's degree in French) trimmed with white ermine which was awarded her by Laval University in Canada. Miss Gallagher wears a yellow or gold hood designating her master's degree in the science and Social Work, with dark red or green below the gold, the colors of Washington University in St. Louis, the institution at which she studied for her degree.

All graduates of the college will receive hoods at the ceremony. The bachelor of arts will be conferred with purple, gold, and white hoods, the colors representing their college and their field. Purple, gold, and yellow hoods will be re-

For the Record . . .

Virginia Bartholome

Last fall I wrote myself a note that was intended to place some limits on my choice of subject matter for editorials. It read roughly as follows: "There's one thing this world doesn't need and that's somebody telling us what this world needs." Whether this self-addressed piece of plagiarized wisdom has accomplished its end is a moot question. At any rate, I am happy to inform you that this, my final editorial, will in no way attempt either to persuade you to reform your reading habits or to point out the basic flaw in our foreign policy. (They did blunder, though, you know, when they decided to have the Berlin conference in Geneva instead of in Bal Mar, Florida, where the climate is so much more conducive to mellow summit conferences.)

What I would like to do is to point out not what we need but what we already have. And the subject matter for this congratulatory note is the laudable effort made by a group of women known as the Executive Board of the St. Teresa's Alumnae Association.

Headed by Jean Mullane, who has graciously consented to resume her post as president of the association for another two-year period, the thirty-six members of this board have made some very praiseworthy efforts to establish the alumnae-awareness among the graduates of both the academy and the college. They have helped to bring into being a consciousness in the group of the fact that the graduates have real ties binding them, that they are vital members of a real body, and that as such they form a very powerful unit toward the accomplishment of great things.

It is hard to see this in black and white. As far as the record goes, they have not sponsored so many more alumnae activities than there were in past years. They have achieved a certain variety in the type of activity sponsored, notably the raising of money for a college scholarship, the donation of funds toward the purchasing of a station wagon for the Sisters, and the inauguration of the news letter to promote the alumnae spirit.

These things are all good and all beneficial to the school. But they do not touch, except indirectly, at the spot where the real advances have been made and are being made. And in this present day where so often a school is evaluated by what its graduates think about it and how active its alumnae association is, this is what really counts, the constant growth of alumnae awareness, a realization that these women are what they are because of the type of education they have received.

The building of what may be called alumnae-spirit is the ground work for the accomplishment of things on a much wider scale. It has not been easy and will never be easy. It can only be hoped that the present students of the college and especially the graduates of the class of 1959, the future alumnae, will cooperate to the fullest with the present members of the association.

Principium

It is all in the knowing,
In the way you look at it.
For most, graduation
Is leaving the hectic serenity
Of four years
For the hectic responsibility
Of a lifetime, in the world.
(And where are you now if you are not in the world?)
Look outside, then.
It seems peaceful enough
For the present.
The city is the same,
And the grass is green (Maybe greener, the other side of the fence, you know).
From the boredom of routine
To the boredom of routine
In more-than-one
Not so easy lesson.
Or will it be less boring
Since you have learned
(We hope)
To open your minds,
And dare to be a whole man
In the cold-war world
Of half-men?

Necessary Help For The Small Colleges

(An editorial reprinted from the KANSAS CITY STAR and sent by Eugene Page, secretary of the Missouri College Fund, to its members.)

"In 1952 the Missouri College Joint Fund Committee received $4,412 from six contributors. Last year more than 230 contributors gave $152,633 to support the 14 independent liberal arts colleges. These schools represent private education entirely free from government control.

Last year's support showed a fine improvement, but by no means can it be accepted as the ultimate achievement. These schools, entirely without tax support, are most important in our successful dual system of state and private institutions of higher education. They deserve the strongest backing. For private business this is a clear case of enlightened self-interest.

In Kansas City, 60 firms have contributed since 1952. Many have made an annual donation. But surely more than five dozen corporations in this metropolitan area recognize the needs of the small liberal arts colleges and their importance in our economic and cultural framework.

Growing enrollments, inflation and the necessity of higher teacher pay have put the squeeze on all universities and colleges. The private schools can't go to a legislature for an increase in appropriations. They must turn to the community. The Missouri College Joint Fund Committee provides the channel for contributions."

Four Juniors To Canvass Europe With NF

Is it fun? Is it chaos? It's four CSTers making hectic plans to tour Europe this summer! Four members of the junior class, Ann Lancaster, Madeline Senne, Arden Sickman and Judy Stephenson will sail from New York July 3 on an N. F. tour with about twenty-five other Catholic college students from various parts of the nation.

Passports, inoculations and packing are some of the traumatic situations with which the girls are faced. Each member of the tour is allowed one, yes, one, suitcase (if you can imagine Madeline living out of one suitcase). The only solution to this problem of the limited wardrobe seems to be the "stick to one color" plan. Madeline decided black would be her choice for the two months duration, while Judy and Anne chose blue and Arden is taking "everything Loden green." Then of course there are those handy drip-dry fabrics, but Judy Stephenson doesn't trust them, so she's spending her life washing everything over "just to test them." (She finds it really works! but the Stephensons can't find their way through the house littered of little blouses and unmentionables which Judy hangs for testing purposes.)

Further complications are presented by Linda Turner's forthcoming wedding, in which Arden and Madeline are to be bridesmaids. The returning ship will dock at Quebec on September 7, allowing Arden and Madeline five days to make their way back to Kansas City and prepare for the wedding. Three days after the wedding the bride is due to start classes at Fontbonne College in Saint Louis. The world travelers will have this three-day breather in which to do some fast unpacking and preparing for their senior year at CST.

Viaberg Chamber Players Return

The College got its second exposure this year to classical music on Wednesday, May 6, when the Viaberg Chamber Players returned to St. Teresa's for another program of chamber music. The string group of nine, conducted by Hugo Vianello, played the Concerto Grosso in C Minor, Opus 6, Number 3, by Arcangelo Corelli and Gioacchino Rossini's Sonata.

Again the program was further enhanced by the conductor's comments. Mr. Vianello, assistant director of the Kansas City Philharmonic, this time explained the difference between polyphony and accompaniment, two methods of attaining harmony, giving the example of Corelli's Concerto as polyphony and the Sonata as accompaniment. He also carefully explained that Rossini did not write his Sonata when he was twelve years old, as he has claimed, but that he was all of sixteen at the time he produced it.

The scheduled program was so well received that, for an encore, the group played a very quick medley of three Slavic dances by Bartok, and the beautiful Meditation from the opera Thais. They then concluded with the amusing and familiar Plink, Plank, Plunk, ending the program, not with a bang, but a plunk.

Business Supports Liberal Arts Through Missouri College Fund

How to pay the costs of operating a private college is a pressing problem for college administrators. The proposed solutions range from the suggestion that the student should pay the full cost of his education (he now pays less than one half the cost) to the proposal advanced by Dr. Urban Fleege of the Education Department at DePaul University. He believes the consumer should pay for the product and suggests mortgaging the first two years of a student's productive life following his graduation.

As Sister Alfred, president of the college here, pointed out during a discussion of this subject, this last solution is no solution for a girls' college. No man wants to marry a mortgage and that would be the case if a girl were married immediately following her graduation from college.

One of the means of the College of St. Teresa and the other thirteen privately supported liberal arts colleges in the state of Missouri have used to alleviate financial stress, Sister Alfred said, is the personal solicitation of business firms in conjunction with the Missouri College Fund.

This association, founded in 1952 (St. Teresa's has been a member since that time), is comprised of the presidents of all the accredited, four-year independent liberal arts colleges in Missouri. The fourteen colleges are all church-related, representing six different denominations. Among this number are five Catholic colleges: the College of St. Teresa and Rockhurst College in the Kansas City area, and Fontbonne, Maryville and Webster Colleges in the St. Louis area.

Funds are solicited from business firms directly by the college presidents who spend fifteen days each year in personal visits to companies in the state of Missouri.

Business has become more aware of the value of high educational standards through good public relations, Sister Alfred said, and they like giving to a fund of this type where all the donations are equally divided among the fourteen colleges. Of course, if any one business does desire to give to a specific college it is free to do so.

It has also been made evident through the past few years that the privately owned business firm and the independently operated college have the same battle to fight. They are both trying to exist in competition with state-controlled organizations.

Both of these factors, the new stress on educational standards and the spirit of free enterprise, Sister Alfred believes to be causes of the continued support of the liberal arts college by business.

From the Missouri College Fund, which is one of forty similar state organizations, the College of St. Teresa has received in the past eight months from September, 1958, to April, 1959, more than $6800. All the colleges make use of the contributions to meet current operational needs. St. Teresa's uses the entire sum for faculty salaries. This figure has become a stable part of the college budget.

The association has as its objective an eventual goal of $30,000 per college which would help the colleges to get and keep the qualified teachers who alone can insure quality in higher education.

Lay Mission Apostolate Attracts CST Alumnae

Three hundred and fifty Catholic laymen — single men, women and even married couples—are either working today as missionaries or are training.

Two CST alumnae, class of '49, are in this lay missionary work; Gerry Carrigan, English major, is engaged in editorial work in Japan and Mary Elizabeth Schutte, art major, is teaching shorthand in British East Africa.

For the next two years Gerry will act as assistant editor to a missionary magazine and a biblical "comic book" for children published by the Research Center for Intellectual Apostolate, which is currently located near Osaka. Gerry is editor of the Oriens a monthly paper describing the missionary work being done in Japan.

The formation of study groups for Japanese converts is the principal project of the committee under which Gerry works. As there are only 150,000 converts in Japan they feel isolated, and are frequently ostracized from family and friends; the committee is attempting to remedy this situation through the formation of religious groups.

Virtually all the Catholic Japanese live in urban areas, and a large number belong to the intellectual class. As most of the few thousand "influential" Japanese live in Tokyo, the committee plans to set up headquarters there and will attempt to bring Catholic converts into contact with these intellectual and influential people.

The following are excerpts from Mary Elizabeth's letter to Sister Georgianna Marie of the Art Department: "We've been in Mwanza now since September 23 and like it very much. Three of us are operating the bookshop alternately and I'm giving short-hand lessons. We are also teaching Latin to little would-be servers. They are the cutest things — so well behaved. One thing you never see is a spoiled African child. We work under the direction of the White Fathers. The White Sisters have a school for girls here, and there are the Poor Clares as well, in whose convent we have been staying.

"Mwanza has a population of 22,000 Africans, 400 Europeans, and 4,000 Indians of different sects: Hindus Sikhs, strict Moslems, Agha Khan Moslems, Goans and Seychellois. These last two have been Catholics since St. Francis Xavier's evangelization of the Indies, and he is great patron of theirs. They had Solemn High Mass on his feast day, December 3, and we three were invited to their big party the following Saturday, at which we had a great time. We were very pleased to be asked, because that meant they classed us with the White Fathers."

The following is a list of missionary training centers for lay persons: Grail Institute for Overseas Service of Loveland, Ohio, with 40 women already working in Africa, Asia, and Latin America and 19 more in training; Michele's AID whose first class of eight men and three married couples are now in Mexico, Japan, and Singapore while eight other men and seven more couples are in training; Lay Mission-Helpers of Los Angeles which in three years has sent 55 persons overseas for a minimum of three years service; and International Catholic Auxiliaries of Evanston, Illinois, a woman's group whose 200 members have promised to dedicate their lives to the missions, and to embrace the spirit of poverty, chastity, and obedience.

Funds to College

During the alumnae breakfast, April 26, a check for $2,650, taken from the loyalty fund, was presented to the President of the College, Sister M. Alfred. The check will pay for a new station wagon for the sisters.

Miss Nellie Widman, 800 S. Burlington, Los Angeles, California, presented the Alumnae Association with a check for $500 which was also given to Sister Alfred.

The alumnae scholarship for $400 was presented to Marie Light, junior.

A check for $150 was forwarded to the Mother Superior in St. Louis to be sent to the new mission in Tsu, Japan.

Officers of the Alumnae

Jubilarians Honored At Homecoming

Msgr. Schumacher Speaks To Alumnae

In his address to the alumnae members at their homecoming breakfast, Reverend Richard Schumacher spoke of the occasion as one of joy. This was an opportunity for classmates to become young girls again by recalling incidents of their school life. It was likewise an opportunity for meeting with former teachers, he reminded the group.

Mrs. Josephine Haines, the oldest living member of the Alumnae, was singled out by Monsignor as a worthy representative of the class of the school. At the age of ninety she is at daily Mass and Holy Communion. She likewise has a special devotion to St. Joseph, because as she told Monsignor, "he was so good to Mary."

Because the members of a Catholic College Alumnae Association have the gift of Faith, Monsignor Schumacher told the group they must use that gift, and because they have been given the tools to work out their salvation they have the following obligations:

1. To live the Faith.
2. To be virtuous and set an example to those outside the Faith.
3. To be determined to save their souls, to become Saints.
4. To be apostolic by sharing their Faith.
5. To be Church-minded, feeling and thinking with the Church.

In encouraging the group to be spiritual-minded, Monsignor reminded them they are never too old to take on the burden of the Church. He gave as an example, His Holiness, Pope John XXIII, who at the age of 77, assumed the heavy burden of Supreme Pontiff.

Alumnae Breakfast Following Mass Held in Gymnasium

One hundred and fifty college and academy alumnae attended the annual breakfast Sunday, April 26, held in the gymnasium of the Music and Arts Building. The guest speaker was Monsignor Richard Schumacher of St. Elizabeth's Parish.

The Academy class of 1885 was represented by Mrs. Josephine Haines, 3925 Harrison. Mrs. Elizabeth Hackett, 1228 W. 57th St., was the representative of the class of 1887. Both are 90 years old. Mrs. Haines and Mrs. Hackett have been active members in the alumnae for over 70 years.

Five Golden Jubilarians were able to attend the breakfast:

The "Round Robin Letter" was started in 1956 by Sister M. Gonzaga. The stencil was cut by Miss Mary Elizabeth Dolan and run off by Sister Grace Louise.

Freshmen and Sophomores Add To Election Results

Information concerning election results for the incoming sophomore and junior class officers was not available for the election issue last month, so the following additions to the list of campus leaders for 1959-60 should be made now.

Connie Kassick was elected president of the incoming junior class by her classmates. Her fellow officers will be Barbara Field, vice-president, Mary Helen Leahy, student council representative, Judy Blossom, secretary, and Ann Wilkins, treasurer.

Joan Bartholome will be president of the sophomore class next year. The other four girls selected as class leaders for next fall are: Carol Schwitzer, vice-president, Ann Carey, student council representative, Pat Durrant, secretary, and Margaret Ann Fuchs, treasurer.

A Note Of Thanks

Sister Grace Louise, head of the Department of Business Administration, and Mrs. Stroker, wish to extend their thanks to the following persons for their help during the school year.

Mr. John Stevenson, Business Analyst, Bureau of Foreign Commerce, U. S. Dept. of Commerce, for speaking to the Money and Banking class on the subject of foreign trade.

Mr. Ernest M. Wharton, Cashier, Overland Park State Bank, for speaking to the Money and Banking class on banking operations.

Mr. Lewis Smith, Personnel Department, and Mr. Larry Walker for arranging and conducting the Money and Banking class tour of the Federal Reserve Bank.

Mr. Jerry Parks, Mr. Richard McLaughlin and Mr. Wayne Anderson, who were responsible for the Money and Banking class tour of the Kansas City Board of Trade.

Mrs. Jean Asbury, Office Supervisor, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, who arranged for the use of the Tele-trainer in the Office Practice class.

Mr. Earl Reinwalt of Monroe Calculating Machine Co., Inc., for his demonstration of the Monroe adding machine to the Accounting and Statistical Methods classes.

Mr. Frank Bourke, Thomas A. Edison Industries, for his demonstration of the latest Edison Voicewriting equipment to the Office Practice class.

Mr. C. P. Andrae and Mr. Jack Gier of Thomas A. Edison Industries for making the Edison Voicewriter available for use in the Office Practice and Transcription classes during the last month of the semester.

Mr. Tom Russo, Mr. Robert Ring and Mr. Frank Goode, Remington-Rand Division of Sperry Rand Corporation, for their concerted efforts in supplying the Office Practice class with electric typewriters and the latest adding machines and printing calculators for the last month of the semester.

Mr. John Williams, Remington-Rand Division of Sperry

Three ex-council members were elected presidents of their respective classes: J. Bartholome, C. Kassick, and J. Huff.

Rand Corporation, for demonstrating the Remington-Rand electric typewriter.

Sister Catherine Marie for lending from the Business Office the checkwriter and adding machine for Office Practice class use.

Sister Agnes Josephine and Mrs. Dorei for the use of the Home Economics rooms, for electrical equipment in Transcription and Office Practice classes.

A Fait Accompli

Garry Moore has a feature on his T. V. show called "That Wonderful Year," which celebrates nostalgic events of the past. For example, if the year were 1929, he might use the Depression, and so forth. Without further ado, the Teresian presents from the past issues, highlights of that wonderful year—1959.

This was the year that . . .

. . . These three plays were given the college: Blithe Spirit by Noel Coward, the Glass Menagerie by Tennessee Williams, Beyond the Mountain by Sister Marcella Marie.

. . . the Juniors won college day.

. . . the good ship Avalon caused "a good number of Teresians" to miss the boat.

. . . Pat Rehagen, Bernadine Abbot, Carolyn Bousman, Carmella Shortino, Carm Bergup, Margaret Courter, Joanne Ainesworth, Charlene Mathews, Emeley Perez, Sister Louis and Sister Catherine Lucille were elected to Who's Who.

. . . we decided to have a yearbook. And did.

. . . Joyce Gueguen placed second in a contest sponsored by District 2 of the Student Nurses Association of Missouri.

. . . 1500 enrolled in the Adult Education Winter Session. 1500 (people, understood).

. . . a successful alumnae contributed $380 to the scholarship fund, thus earning their right to that fried chicken victory dinner.

. . . The Mission Club raised $250 for Japan.

. . . campus musicians and artists provided audio-visual thrills with concerts and exhibits. The chorus also was on T. V.

. . . Sandy Janousek was elected vice-president of the Mid-West Region of N. F.

. . . there were varied assembly speakers. Everything from Russia to Yucatan.

(One is tempted to say "from soup to nuts" but is afraid the phrase might be misunderstood.)

. . . The C. S. T. team won the Charles T. Manley trophy for the ninth time in twelve years. As the letter read, "Well, you've done it again."

. . . we studied as usual, unspectacular as it may seem.

. . . 62 made the Dean's list and Honor Roll at the semester. 62 (students, understood).

. . . new clubs were formed, new courses added, rooms redecorated, shrines revamped, new instructors employed, conventions held, and contacts with the community strengthened. All generalizations about the generally healthy state of growth at C. S. T. during that wonderful year—1959.

Faculty To Travel, Study, Teach During Coming Summer Session

Some faculty members will go abroad this summer, some will travel closer to home base and some will stay right here in Kansas City and teach during the summer session.

Sister Georgiana Marie, head of the Art Department, will sail from New York June 3 on the Regina Tour, the Fontbonne College Alumna-Student Tour. (See March Teresian for details.)

Sister Catherine Marie, bursar, will attend a workshop on College Business Administration at Catholic University, Washington, D. C., June 12-23.

Sister de La Salle has been invited to be a member of the research conference at Manhattanville College, Purchase, New York. The conference is under the auspices of the National Catholic Educators Association and will be in session August 15-20.

Sister M. Felice has been invited to be on a panel to discuss religious drama for children at the Children's Theatre Conference, which meets August 24-26, Michigan City, Indiana. A workshop in acting and directing, conducted by John Allen from London, will precede this meeting.

Sister Agnes Josephine will attend a four-week workshop at the University of Minnesota, June 15-July 10, conducted by the North Central Association Study Committee on Liberal Arts. Sister will be working on a curriculum for teacher education as part of the program the Education Department is working out in view of accreditation by NCATE (National Council for Accrediting of Teacher Education).

Sister Marcella Marie will spend the summer at the College of St. Catherine, St. Paul, where she hopes to write a play for the children's theatre this fall. On her return home, August 18, she will stop at Notre Dame for the National Catholic Theatre Conference where she will be a member on the panel on play-writing.

Sister Grace Louise of the Business Department has obtained an all-expense fellowship for a four-week program of "Economics-in-Action" conducted by the extension division of Economics of the University of Wisconsin. She will be in Madison, Wisconsin, from June 14 to July 10. The program is financed by a large number of Mid-Western firms who have faith in the program's objectives.

The main objective of "Economics-in-Action" is to help college teachers pass on to their students an up-to-date understanding of economic processes.

Sister M. Walburga has received an all-expense paid grant to a work-shop at North Texas State College, Denton, Texas, for the latter part of August. The workshop is limited to twenty and is planned for the teachers of undergraduate courses in physiology.

Two Busloads of Nurses Attend Meet At State Capitol

It was 4:45 a. m. when sixty-five CST nursing students climbed into two school buses one morning late in April. This group, representing the student nurses of District No. 2 was one of the biggest delegations to the Missouri State Nurses' Association's seventh annual convention, held in Jefferson City.

According to one of the freshman nurses, Joanie Bartholome, who acted as an observer at the convention as did her thirty classmates, the trip was a valuable source of information concerning the workings of the Student Nurse Association.

The most interesting part of the Friday program for Joanie was introduction of the new officers for the coming year. The CST nurses and others in the organization mailed in their votes for the respective nominees and the final votes were tallied the night before this session of the convention took place, adding an element of suspense to the day's proceedings.

Acting Class Reads Shakespeare Excerpts

The Old Vic Players (Acting class) of Windmoor will present Shakespeare readings, Thursday, May 21 at 2:00 in the Assembly Hall.

Scenes from Romeo and Juliet, The Merchant of Venice, Othello, Julius Caesar, Macbeth, As You Like It, Hamlet and Prince Henry IV, will be portrayed by the thespians of CST. Marilyn Marshall will introduce the players: John Kent, Alyce Marie Schmidt, Mary McQueeny, Marcella Bergup, Pat Turpin, Thomasina Degnan and Sandie Janousek.

Yes, it's Governor Blair posed with Joanie Bartholome. Gerry Rose was the photographer who caught their smiles and that of Sallie Schreiber peeking around the governor's elbow.

CST President, Nursing Director At National Meet

Sister Mary Alfred, president of the college, and sister Mary Fabian, head of the Department of Nursing, attended the convention for the National League for Nursing in Philadelphia, held May 7 through 15. Sister Fabian attended the convention as a representative of the Missouri State Board of Nursing of which she is the president.

Sister Alfred and Sister Fabian made a side trip to New York before the convention for some preliminary meetings.

Both Sisters will report back to the Kansas City League for Nursing on the Philadelphia convention. Sister Fabian will give her report on baccalaureate programs in nursing and Sister Alfred will report on the Philadelphia convention as the lay-member of the Board of Directors of the Kansas City League for Nursing.

Fashion Show Attracts Enthusiastic Audience

Capacity audiences at the CST fashion show expressed their approval of this bridal gown modeled by college freshman Martha Snell. The dress, highlight of the style display, was first shown at the World Fair in Brussels at the United States Pavilion.

The dress is fashioned of alencon lace and satin and embroidered with baby sequins. The same motif in lace and handsewn clustered pearls is repeated on the dress and the Swedish-crowned veil. Lantern sleeves and a cathedral train complete the regal look. The dress sells for two hundred and forty-five dollars at Sherri's on the Plaza who showed both summer apparel and bridal wear at the fashion show.

The show's finale was the drawing for the winner of the hope chest given away as a door prize. Jean Mullane, president of the Alumnae Association, drew the name of the first winner, Sharon O'Connor, academy class of '57. The second prize, a set of dishes and matching crystal, was awarded to Marcia Doering, college freshman. Julie Sheek received the third prize, a steam iron. Mrs. Harold Gainey, mother of Frances, academy class of '56, and Marie, academy sophomore, won the fourth prize, a musical wedding book, courtesy of Sherri's.

No report of the fashion show would be complete without mention of the little sisters who modeled the children's fashions from Farrar's Girls Shop. Little Bridget Kempster summoned all the poise and stage presence that a two-year-old can muster to steal the show.

The two campus glee clubs performed medleys from Romberg and Broadway's Peter Pan between sections of the style show.

Financial returns are now near the $1,000 mark and there's more to come.

NF Supernaculum Prints Parrott's "The Ugly Man"

Congratulations are in order for Joanne Parrott, of the class of '58, whose story, The Ugly Man, which received honorable mention in the Atlantic Monthly contest last year, and appeared in last spring's Echo, was the first story in the recent publication of Supernaculum. Supernaculum is the literary magazine of the literary commission of NFCCS, in which works of students from colleges around the nation are published. Two other poems of Joanne's were also printed in this issue.

So Very Conventional

Pat Turpin

According to a recent Broadway play, "The Third Best Sport," conventions are the third most popular national pastime. St. Teresa's, never one to oppose the law of averages, seems to be following this trend. Delegates from CST will attend three conventions this summer.

The NFCCS 16th National Congress in St. Louis will provide Teresians with the opportunity of sitting in on a national convention of Catholic students. Approximately 1500 representatives from 200 Catholic colleges will congregate at the Sheraton-Jefferson Hotel the first week in September. Old business, new business, resolutions, caucuses, elections—all will take place within the hurly-burly, hurry-scurry, time-cramped week. The policy of the Federation for the coming school year will be determined at this congress. Any student interested in the future of the Church, her school and herself should look into the possibilities of attending the NF Congress. Meet you in St. Louis?

By August . . .

Dad should be willing to send me to all THREE Conventions!

What's this? Teresians packing to go to Notre Dame? Yes, several members of the Drama Club are planning to be there for the 12th biennial National Catholic Theatre Conference, August 18-20.

The club is sponsoring Sandie Janousek, Pat Turpin and Marcella Bergup. The girls will participate in panel discussions on the four plays to be presented, hear professionals speak, exchange ideas with other students and increase their knowledge of theatre arts. The convention will be closed with a banquet in honor of a famous stage star to be announced.

Chicago is the destination of Sodalists attending the Summer School of Catholic Action at the Congress Hotel, August 31 to September 4. It is a special session for collegians and nurses. The school consists of a week of class sessions with counseling to guide the spiritual formation of the Sodalists.

TERESIAN Ranks First At MU

In the life of every publication, there comes a day of reckoning. For the Teresian this day came when the Missouri College Newspaper Association gave it a Rank I rating in the Class B division (4-year colleges with less than 1,000 enrollment.)

The reckoning came for individual journalists also. Their work was ranked either I, II, or III, according to its category. Nancy Schmitz was awarded a gold key for Best Newspaper Verse in the division. It was presented to her on class day. In addition, Nancy was given one Rank I and two Rank II certificates in Best Photography.

Virginia Bartholome, editor, won I-rankings in Best Special Column, Best Critical Review and Best Editorial (two awards). She gained II-ratings in Best News Story (two awards), in Best Critical Review and Best Editorial.

Ann Cary and Anna Jane Wright were also given Rank I certificates in Best Special Column. II's were awarded A. J. Wright in News Story, Kay Leitner in Newspaper Verse, Marilyn Marshall and Pat Rehagen in Feature, Pat Rehagen in Editorial, K. Leitner and Joan Bartholome in Special Column, and Judy Coleman in Best Advertisement.

Field day was productive, as usual of blue ribbons and charley horses. An unexpected fringe benefit provided for spectators was the opportunity to learn the whole score of Oklahoma! while watching the events.

It must have been difficult for the contestants to time their high jumps to synchronize with the last chorus of "Mostly Martha" or other "jump" tunes. Note to the winner: Linda, you did that as gracefully as a girl. What is your secret?

Someone ought to suggest that Miss Reardon save those torn bur-lap sacks. Just hem them and they'd be darling sack-skirts in case that style ever comes back. What do you think, Home Ec Club?

As Tommy Degnan said as she limped across the field, "I wonder if I can collect on Blue Cross for something like this." What—after all that wall-jumping as Highlo?

Casualties

Anyway, the only real casualties* were the crushed white dixie cups dotting the hillside the day after Field Day. Everyone voted it a true success. But who won the photography competition: the man from the Star, the man from the Register or the sister and the two girls from the Teresian? Remains to be seen.

If you think it's a good trick to crowd people into telephone booths, cars or hoola-hoops, you ought to see the storage capacity (not in people but in everything else) of Karen Meyers and Barbara Overman's locker. They don't open it, they turn the combination, jerk the handle quickly and stand back!

These are the kind of balmy days that make one rather sick that one has used all one's cuts.

Too Deep for Tears

Another sobering thought is that 20 centuries have elapsed since the present Sophomores started college. Not that they are slow learners—just that they are judging by their tenderly-kept, tear-stained humanities notes. Sic transit gloria mundi.

Poodle

Anna Jane Wright insists that Miss Reardon and Sue Christenson's toy poodle looks like Freud (pronounced Froyt). Shouldn't happen to a dog.

We are once again reminded that May is Mary's month and may she help keep such disagreeable things as final exams from ruining her territory.

On Our Toes

Swan song: Eileen Hertzell who danced the role of Swan Queen in the Kansas City Civic Ballet Company's production of Swan Lake is a former CST student which proves

As a proof that the College of St. Teresa develops the "full woman," physically as well as mentally, English and philosophy classes were called off on Wednesday afternoon, April 29, and St. Teresa's annual field day was held. The event took place on the lower campus under the direction of Miss Reardon and Sue Christenson. Pat Hauser was high point girl of the day, placing first in two events: the broad jump and the baseball throw. In the fifty and seventy-five yard dashes Anna Marie Zacher finished first. Nancy Pischke and Beverly Boutross got together to win the sack race, and Gerry Rose, Sallie Schreiber, and Margaret Fuchs were first in the relay. The "highlight" of the meet was the high jump. Linda Hare came out on top, four feet and three inches from the ground.

Unique Methods

There was a display of some unique methods during the meet. Lenore Wholey seemed to forget that there was sand and not water on the landing side of the high jump pole, for she persisted in diving over the pole head first. Mary McCullopp made light work of skipping up and over the same pole. And after Anna Marie Zacher won the first race without her shoes, there were a lot of barefoot contestants lined up for the second race. In the end it seems that the College did more than merely develop some soft muscles. Participants were easily recognized the next day by several symptoms: a very slow paced difficulty in climbing stairs, and a pained expression on the face. In one case, crutches were necessary. Kathy Fahlstrom managed to sprain a muscle without entering a race.

something but I'm not quite sure what. Perhaps that some of us are still on our toes?

Also tripping it as she goes "on the light fantastic toe" is Nancy Schmitz who was a member of the corps de ballet in "City of Percussion" "Macerena" and "Revival" which were three modern dances on the same program. They sound more like detective stories on TV.

Before you make that catty remark: think of Clare Booth Luce! Or the Morse Code (Senator-style).

The Short Of It

By way of parting we submit this Song to be Sung by Female Collegians (Wistfully) while Departing Either Temporarily from the Friendly Environs of CST with the Prospect Before Them of A Long, Hot Summer, etcetera.

Good-bye to the smoker
Good-bye to the cooks
Good-bye to the teachers
And, oh yeah, the books.

* We have since learned there was a real casualty. Kathy Fahlstrom is still using crutches.

Footloose and Fancy Free From Noon Till Three

On top, the girls reclining on the hillside, probably seniors, demonstrate their ability to dodge any form of activity. N. B. The slim figure of Miss Gray is the only one in a standing position.

In the picture at the far left, the runners in front show off their co-ordination and two-man team spirit, while those lagging behind display an obvious lack of the former quality and an admirable abundance of the latter.

At the right, singing "Me and My Shadow," Leonette Strizek executes a broad jump. Luckily, Leonette didn't land in that sitting position.

The Ball Game

I suppose the wish of any baseball fan might be to work in a baseball office, you know, so you could get all the inside dope and information. And besides, where else would it be so easy to be "up" on the latest baseball events and meet all the players. How exciting!

Well, I'm a baseball fan from way back—I mean I'm just batty about the game and I work for the Kansas City Athletics. It's just wonderful. I've only met one ballplayer and he was just very nice. 'Course I had him sign autographs for me and all my friends and I told him how I just LOVE baseball and asked him all kinds of important personal questions about his career in baseball, the things they never include in the yearbooks, and told him about this darling boy that lives down the street and should be playing major league ball and couldn't he do something for him.

Well, by this time I'd found the two pictures of him I had in my scrapbook and had him inscribe them personally to me and he was just wonderful and said he'd never seen so many things to sign and that he'd be sure and tell the other fellows about me. He promised to bring me a ball, but it's funny, I haven't seen him since. I guess he forgot. He told me to come talk to him again, but when I tried to read his autograph, it looked like Boris Pasternak, and I'm sure we don't have anyone on our team by that name.

Which reminds me, I thought there'd be lots of baseball players all over and I'd get to know them real well, but I haven't seen one around the office where I work, but when they do come, I have my autograph books and pictures and scrapbooks all ready for them.

But I imagine you'd rather hear about the players. Well, I'd just love to share my knowledge with the rest of you girls so you can be up-to-date and able to discuss baseball with the fellows.

Howie Reed has really been impressive so far this season when he pitched a 4-0 shutout, for his third straight victory of the season. Howie is a Texas product with a darling southern accent, big blue eyes, a tremendous tan and two lovely children.

Junior Reedy is also looking real good, especially in the home run total. Speaking of home run totals, our George Freese has seven, which is tops in the league. It's really a shame he fractured his finger on Carl Thomas' wild pitch. He's one of our top infielders, but we can always fall back on our bench strength of Valentin and Graff.

What's that you say—you've never heard of these players? What? Maris, Cerv, Chiti, DeMaestri! Who are they? Oh yes, the Kansas City Athletics. Well, my goodness, I don't know anything about them—I work for the farm club system: Portland, Shreveport, Plainview and the others. If you want to know anything about the majors, well for heaven's sakes, I haven't read a paper on them in weeks. But as I was saying, I'd really love to share my knowledge so you can be up-to-date.

Now take Evans Kileen, he's really doing good. Why just the other day . . .
